About TPP

The Power Project offers speeches and workshops designed to inspire audiences to recognize the power within them to overcome challenges, set goals, and find success.

Through our program, we want to communicate to teens that it's not about how you start in life, you have the power to choose how you want to finish.

Speeches

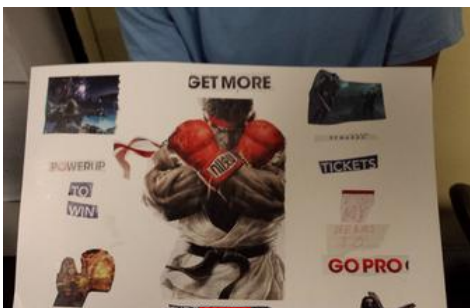

FINDING SUCCESS WHEN THE STRUGGLE IS REAL

As a former foster youth, speaker Meiko Taylor encourages students to look beyond their challenges, embrace their unique identity, and offers tips on figuring out the first building block of success. Meiko engages students with her humor, storytelling, and group participation.

Workshops

FROM POWER BOARDS TO POWER MOVES

Rooted in the belief that if you can see it you can achieve it, this workshop is designed to assist students in identifying their unique gifts and purpose and create a powerful visual, a dream board, to help move them towards success.

"You have the POWER to choose how you're going to finish."

About Speaker Meiko Taylor

Meiko Taylor is a former foster youth turned Hollywood filmmaker. She has worked with clients like Ford, Snickers, as well as with stars from such film and tv shows as Scandal, American Crime Story, Being Mary Jane, CSI, The Lion King, etc.

In addition to filmmaking, Meiko spent 8 years working directly with foster care and probation youth as a Group Home Counselor. She found herself sharing her experience successfully aging out of the foster care system, and coaching her clients on ways to do the same. Meiko was inspired to launch The Power Project as a way to further spread a message of hope, overcoming challenges and finding success.

Meiko holds a B.S. in Psychology from Loyola University Chicago, as well as a MBA. She currently resides in Los Angeles, CA.
